Dear M&P Committee members and Ministry Personnel,

Perhaps as you see advertising for this event, you're asking yourself: Why yet another Ministry and Personnel Committee Workshop? Why should we come? How will this help us to carry out our responsibilities?

Is there a way to do things that would be more effective than what we've been doing? After attending this workshop, your answer to this question should be a resounding "yes."

Usually in congregational life, we're juggling priorities, all of which are important. In the midst of all the demands, communication can break down between congregants and ministry personnel, and among staff in multiple staff settings, which can eventually lead to conflict. What this workshop will give you is a user-friendly method to set, resource, and give feedback on a minister's priorities with a team of key church leaders and the minister him/herself. The effectiveness of this process saves time, lessens stress, and reduces a primary cause of conflict. And—believe it or not!—all this can be accomplished with only 3 meetings of at most 2 hours each per year.

We'll show you how to build the team(s), how to prepare for and conduct each meeting, and how to sync what you're doing with the congregation.

Having used this method for over a year now, we are so pleased with the results that we want to share it widely. We hope you'll come with a team from your congregation to learn how to use this successful process.
